Dear Students:

Very unfortunately, due to unforeseen emergencies, I am unable to hold the remaining 2 lectures in person. I am also very sorry that today class has to be canceled with such a short notice.

Below are our plans:

- I will record my 2 lectures and post them on Moodle asap and at least within the next 2 days
- The final in-class problem set is still being offered during the next Tuesday class (final day of the course), starting from 10:15 am. Song will run this final day of class as more like an exercise session, to also help answer any questions you may have that arise from the 2 lecture videos, beyond trying out the last problem set.

I do sincerely apologize for any inconvenience because of these alternative plans of action. I do believe that you all will continue to do well, despite me being not there in person. I trust that you will all continue to stay on course and stay engaged as you guys always do!

Thank you all for your kind understanding and co-operations. Please do not hesitate to email me or Song with any questions at any time, as always.

Best wishes,
Prof. Yimon AYE
